Lamar's Romance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The World publishes the following:

Secretary Lamar was at the Fifth avenue hotel Monday evening. He left for Washington early yesterday morning. Mr. Lamar has been spending a few weeks up in the New Hampshire hills, and he appears to be much benefited by the bracing air of that region. His vacation has had the flavor of romance. It was passed in the company of his fiancée, who is a handsome Georgia widow. There is no longer much doubt that Mr. Lamar is about to follow in the president's footsteps and get married. The name of the lady is Mrs. Holt and she resides in Macon, Ga. She is handsome, accomplished, the possessor of a fortune and a member of one of the best families of the south. It is an old love affair renewed, they say. Mr. Lamar was one of her early suitors, but owing to the caprice of fate and an unhappy misunderstanding they were separated. Years rolled by. When next they met Mr. Lamar was a widower and his former sweetheart a widow. Mr. Lamar found he had not lost his interest in the charming sweetheart of his younger days. The wedding will take place, it is said, some time this winter.

In one of our western exchanges the following advertisement recently appeared: "My wife Jennie ran away or was taken away from me a week ago. The first person who returns her I will shoot on the spot." Now, there is a man who probably knows when he is in luck, and is bound that no unforeseen circumstance, such as the return of Jennie, shall mar his pleasure. It is safe to say that Jennie will pass the long winter over some other man's cookstove.

The Concordia Blade, a republican paper, says: "Thomas Moonlight, the candidate for governor on the democratic ticket is one of the ablest and best men in the state of Kansas. He was a gallant soldier during the war, sustaining the flag of our country on many battle fields. After the war he was for some time private secretary to Hon. S. C. Pomeroy. He is well liked by the people of Kansas—by republicans as much as democrats, and he will surely receive many thousand republican votes. There are, as near as we can get at it, 2,374 election precincts in the state. Martin's majority two years ago was, if we remember rightly, 43,000. A change of only ten votes in each precinct from Martin to Moonlight would elect the latter by 4,680 majority. Martin will not run ahead of his ticket in a single precinct in the state, while in many he will run badly behind any way, whether there is any revolt or not, but if there is he is sure to be 'left'. If this bolt against Wilson is continued, a majority for Moonlight may be looked for. The anti-prohibition vote is in the majority in this county, and it can elect any ticket they unite on. There are stranger things in this world than that Moonlight should be elected."

"It has been developed quite recently and only discovered by accident, that the republicans of Kansas expect to carry the state this fall, not by the citizen vote but by the imported foreign labor vote. As one of the Kansas railroad agents put it in Topeka the other day, when speaking of the probability of the state election this fall going against the republicans: 'Why d—n it, the railroads can and will save the republican ticket this fall by our imported laborers on our extensions in Kansas. Why we'll have over 20,000 voters by the time election comes off, and, if necessary, we can double that number, and we will do it before we will lose the election.' This we tell the people of Kansas is straight goods; what we want to know is, how that sets on the stomachs of Kansas voters." The above, clipped from the Council Grove Guard, shows to what desperate tactics the republican managers will go to rather than again suffer defeat in Kansas. An unholy alliance has been formed between it and the railroads. The combination extends to every congressional district. The corporations of the state are afraid of Democratic success. The attorney's of Jay Gould in Kansas, are openly opposing Moonlight and supporting Martin for governor. If the people of Kansas support the candidates of the railroad companies and elect them they will have no one to blame but themselves.—Western Democrat.

A Terrible Revenge on Mosquitoes.

A Portland, Ore., reporter, who was out in the woods a few days since, and was badly bitten by mosquitoes, is now having his revenge. He caught about 1,000,000 of the larvae of the mosquito and put them in a glass jar partly filled with water, with a piece of mosquito bar over the top. He has put the jar in the window of the reporters' room, and spends the greater part of the time with heels on the window sill smoking three for $1 cigars and watching the mosquitoes hatch out and fly around their prison until they become exhausted and drop into the water. The maddened insects, thirsting for human gore, rave around and fill the jar with hollow murmur, which sound much more musical than when the bloodthirsty wretches are at large. When remonstrated with for his cruelty the torturer replies that he is trying to make the punishment of these mosquitoes fit the crime of their relatives. The other occupants of the room live in mortal terror of the cover coming off the jar.—Chicago Herald.

The joint canvass in Tennessee between the Taylor brothers, rival candidates for governor, is proceeding with a great deal of enthusiasm. The two candidates are very courteous to each other; there is no raking up of old records; no burning personalities; no blackguardism. Alf, the republican candidate, is slow, serious and earnest, while Bob, the democratic nominee, is full of fire and eloquence. Here is a sample of Bob's oratory which is said to carry every thing before it:

"Is there anything improper, indecent, or unbrotherly in our meeting to discuss publicly the interests of a great state and a great nation under these two ideas? We have not met to wrangle or quarrel or scramble for the high office for which we have been made candidates. The tender bond of brotherhood is neither severed nor abraded by our difference of opinion in politics, nor can the discussion of political questions disturb the delicate relations. The red rose and the white rose bloom together and shed their odors upon the same atmosphere, and, gently struggling for supremacy, glorify the twilight hours. My brother represents the red rose and I represent the white. Our political histories vary in this that in my budhood I was transplanted by tender and loving hands into the sweet gardens of pure democracy; while he, like the 'last rose of summer,' was left blooming alone.

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

"But, fellow citizens, when you shall have all taken a snail, and then taken your choice of blossoms, the red rose will have the happy consolation that he is the brother of the governor."

The Beloit Democrat says: "The republicans concede that Moonlight is a very popular man with the people. No railway influences control his nomination; no railway attorney presided over the convention which nominated him; no railway lawyer dictated the platform; no railway attorney manipulates the democratic state committee. The democracy of Kansas has divorced itself from all railway influences, and stands with the toilers and producers, demanding justice to all, equal protection by law and the just distribution of the products of toil."
